PRESENTATIONS

Chinese Medicine can be practiced in the 21st century in such a way as to balance the impact of the great challenges we face today and create an integral understanding and treatment of human health. In this three day course we will explore the most significant imbalances of our time and how Chinese Medicine can, when practiced in the largest possible developmental context, alleviate suffering and re-connect the individual to their original nature. Constitutional diagnosis will be examined as an organizing framework that yields deep insights into each patient's treatment and healing.
